

Professional Public Speaking Jobs

Speech Communications Majors have a wide field of jobs that can be their goal. Professional public speaking is one of the last truly Renaissance Man jobs. If you can be great at communication with words, the world is yours to master.

For this, looks don't necessarily matter. They may help but your words are your power.

Rather than a tightly focused career that may not be in vogue or even needed later in your life, to develop your public speaking skills will prepare you for a wide variety of job and career opportunities.

Public speaking and analytical skills are essential for most career paths.

The path of public speaking can take you to a world of jobs. Consider just a few.

Work in communications, public relations (now called public information), government, public service, sales of various kinds, publishing, journalism (even print journalism has become audio), advertising, education, performing arts, medical, nursing, and business.

Trading Talent for Travel and Cruise Free

Before going to the list, there is a special way to start speaking for profit I want to tell you about. It involves trading talent for travel. The travel is aboard Cruise Lines and you can cruise free.

Would you like to learn how? Subscribe to the e-zine on the left side of this page.

I need to warn you that it is several pages of reading. First you will find all the types of speakers the cruise lines are looking for. Actually, it is not just speakers.

Jobs

Performing Arts

- Acting
- Comedian
- Performing Arts Management
- Press Agent
- Theatrical Agent
- Booking Agent
- Literary Agent
- choreographer
- Theatrical Critic

Director, Designer, Producer

- Executive Producer
- Program Director
- Assistant to the Director
- Stage Management
- Announcer
- Director of Casting
- Radio Announcer

- Radio News Announcer
- Film Director / Editor
- TV Anchorman or Anchorwoman
- TV News Caster
- TV Show Host

Publishing

- Editor of various types
- Publicity
- Promotion
- Advertising Agent
- Contracts and Licensing Liaison

Teaching

- Public and Private School Teaching
- ESL (English as a Second Language)

Note...this is a job in high demand in many countries. It is not always easy. It will allow you to see the world in a unique way. Most people when they travel will see the world as though a game on a field. They have box seats to watch. When you become a teacher, you get to be on the field and play in the game rather than watch.

- University Instructor or Researcher
- Community College Instructor

Note...You can become an adjunct faculty even if you have no college. All that is required is BAM (Brains and Motivation).

- Child Language Specialist
- Forensics/Debate Teacher/ Director
- Drama Teacher/ Director
- Language Arts Instructor
- Public Speaking Instructor

This is just a small list of professional public speaking jobs available. Is there something you could do as a professional public speaker? Where is your public speaking job?

When I hear the saying that most would rather die than give a public speech it makes me wonder. Where is the science or is it just something that sounds chic to say. If it were acutally studied, it seems that most people would be in fear of first, the dentist, second would be a pop math quiz where they could not use a calculator or their fingers, and third would be a cancer diagnosis.

Professional Public Speaking is just to much a part of our lives where ever we are and what ever we do.